“Surgery access in tropical areas and updates in Oncology”

March 26th, 2017

Attn:.....

There are more than 5 billion people do not have full access to safe, affordable and timely surgical care, especially in lower-middle-income countries (Lancet Global Health, 2015). 90% of the population of sub-Saharan Africa has access to roughly one operating theatre per 100 000 people. The few theatres that do exist have limited capacity to provide safe surgical care. For instance, up to 70% lack pulse oximetry, an anesthetic monitoring standard. Whereas, there are approximately 5% of the population in Australia, high-income North America, and Western Europe lack access to surgery. A recent World Health Organization (WHO) study found that more than 90% of deaths from injuries occur in poor countries. Despite such a surgical imbalance around the world, surgery is still “the neglected stepchild of global health”. No global funding organization focuses specifically on the provision of surgical care, and none of the major donors are willing to support and acknowledge surgery as an imperative part of global public health.

There are more than 14 million people in the world suffer annually from cancer and more than 8 million deaths of this disease. It is predicted that there will be approximately 30 million new cancer patients which cause 20 million deaths in which two third are in developing countries. In Vietnam, there are around 170000 to 180000 new cases of cancer each year leading to 80000 to 90000 deaths. In Hai Phong city, the quantity of new cancer patients is estimated around 4000 to 5000, nevertheless, only 60% to 70% of them were treated in hospital.

In Vietnam, there are increasingly achievement and development in medicine in general and in surgery in particular, reaching the better outcome as in developed countries. The government, ministry of health and doctors have been trying their best to perform complex procedures such as transplantation and robot assisted surgery. Besides, the citizen have opportunities to be cured by specialists. Nonetheless, there are not any studies on surgery access conducted in Vietnam.

As the reason mentioned above, Hai Phong University of Medicine and Pharmacy together with French Société de Pathologie Exotique, the Foundation of French Académie Nationale de Médecine and Vietnam Oncology Association holds international conference on “Surgery Access in tropical areas and Updates in Oncology” in Hai Phong city (Vietnam) from 8th to 10th November 2017. This is an occasion for researchers, managers, surgeons and oncologist have opportunities to discuss on public aspect of surgery and to updates advances in oncology (Website: http://hpmu.edu.vn/surgery\_oncology2017).

The conference is expected to welcome about 500 participants including local and international delegates and we will select about 100 abstracts from health centers throughout Vietnam and from Asian, European, American and Asian countries. This is a good opportunity to talk about access to health care as well as the cancer situation in Vietnam.

It is our pleasure to welcome your company’s participation, generous sponsorship and financial support as well as ideas contributing to the success of the conference. For further information, please find in this dossier.

We look forward to the support from your company!
